

We opened bedrock as a bar and grill for the times of today. From our travels around the world over the last few years, we got inspired by many of the things we've savoured – Spanish dinner parties, late-night brasseries in New York and Paris, and just simple good cooking at afternoon eateries in Sydney and San Francisco. Our menu is based on these experiences, using earthy techniques like wood grilling, smoking things hot and cold, and when it feels right, offering family-style dishes for two, three, or even four.

We work directly with farms as far off as the USA, Japan and Australia to source meats and seafood and ensure they are treated well, whether dry-aged or grass-fed, organic or raised through sustainable methods. Because of this, we tend to cook things simply, with only a few ingredients, and a lot of love (and sides to share!)

We also apply our philosophy to drinks. We have fallen in love with traditional whisky from around the world. We have put together a selection of rare and special spirits made by small families and distillers in remote places like the Scottish island and rural Japan. We got lockers if you care to buy a bottle and keep it here, and also classic, whisky-based cocktails to start and finish a meal with.

On behalf of all of us, we hope you come get to know us and share some of our passions for taste, experience, and simple pleasures. To the families we know and don't, couples that want to share a special dinner, or those just looking for a weekday meal or drink...

Welcome to Bedrock.
